WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA

A strong storm will bring damaging winds and heavy rain to the area today into early Sunday. The period with the most significant impacts will be this afternoon and evening where wind gusts from 40 to 60 mph will likely knock a few trees and cause power outages. The heavy rain may also cause debris flows or flash flooding in recent burn scarred areas. Rock slides will also be possible in higher terrain. Wet pattern today through Monday will bring moderate to heavy precipitation at times. Northern California will see 1-3 inches of rain in the valley and 4-8 inches of liquid equivalent precipitation over the mountains that will equate to 1-3 feet of new snow.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

Moist west flow will likely bring showers to northern areas today with a chance of showers elsewhere. A couple of frontal systems will then bring rain, possibly heavy at times to Southern California. The first will affect the area tonight and early Sunday and the second late Sunday night into Monday. Thunderstorms are possible Monday. High snow levels will lower through Monday. Dry and warmer weather is expected Tuesday through most of Thursday. Another front may bring rain to Southern California late Thursday through Friday.
